result of an expert examination of the working of the Government Press we found that it was in a most chaotic condition. The permanent Superintendent was found to be incompetent and he was made to retire. And we have selected one of our own men for training at Madras and he is under-going training. He will probably have to be trained for one year or two years. During this period we have tried to get the services of some experienced person and thro gh the Associated Printers we were able to secure the services of the present incumbent for one year in the first instance to be extended to another year. It is purely a temporary appointment, the idea being that our own man will come and take up the work.
